How to Interpret Your Feedback

This report for XYZ Team includes feedback received from:

10 Managers, 47 Peers, 20 Direct Reports, 14 Others, 11 Self

These survey submissions will be reported as follows*:

10 Managers, 47 Peers, 20 Direct Reports, 14 Others, 11 Self

This report compares your results to the Extraordinary Leader 90th Percentile norm and the Extraordinary Leader 75th Percentile norm. These norms are based on 360-degree feedback obtained from participants in a variety of companies.

As you review this report, keep in mind that feedback is meant to be constructive. You will derive the most benefit from it if you keep an open mind, rather than becoming defensive or looking for reasons why it “must be wrong.”

Definitions and Explanations:

Leadership Model	The Leadership Model displays the five behaviors of the Leadership Tent.
16 Differentiating Competencies	The 16 Differentiating Competencies presented are organized within the five behaviors of the leadership model. Detailed results for each of the 16 Differentiating Competencies are then presented with results listed for each item in the survey. We encourage you to review the results for each of the competencies.
Importance Ratings	This section of the report summarizes the perceptions of others regarding the relative importance of the 16 Differentiating Competencies relating to your success in your current job. Review this section to see if there is any consensus on a few competencies that would help you be more successful.
Highest & Lowest Scoring Items	The next two sections display the 10 most positively scored items and the 10 least positively scored items. This information helps you identify areas of strength and potential fatal flaws.
Response Frequency	The Response Frequency displays a detailed break down of how each item was responded to by each rater group, i.e. Manager, Peer, Direct Report, etc. Use this information as a reference to understand how people reacted to each survey item.
#	This is the number of raters used to calculate a particular score. Example: Even if five peers/direct reports completed your survey, you may find that an item score was calculated from only four raters. This would mean that one person left a survey item blank.

How Scores are Calculated

Scores are averaged and presented by Total, Manager, Peers, Direct Reports, etc., at the Behavior, Competency and Item levels. The Total scores are calculated from group scores excluding your Self score. Responses of Don't Know/Not Applicable and missing responses are not included in the calculations.

*To help ensure anonymity for your respondents, if you received fewer than three submissions from any of your respondent groups (excluding Manager) the results for those groups will not be displayed separately. In such cases, the data from the group with insufficient submissions is combined with another group.

You are now ready to interpret your feedback.
Good luck on your journey toward becoming an Extraordinary Leader.

Section 6: Employee Commitment Index

This section displays the detailed results for the Employee Commitment Index, which measures the extent to which your Direct Reports are satisfied and motivated to do their jobs. The results for each item are sorted from the most positive to the least positive. If you did not receive sufficient feedback from Direct Reports, this section will not display any scores.

Section 7: Importance Ratings

This section displays the 16 Differentiating Competencies ranked from the most important to the least important. Raters were asked to choose four competencies that, if executed with a high level of skill and expertise, would have the most significant impact on your role. This section is not about how well you are currently performing, but is solely about how important the selected competencies are for you to be extremely effective in your current position. The asterisk (*) symbol and yellow highlighting indicate the competencies you personally rated as most important. The numbers displayed in the table below indicate the number of times each competency was selected by the various types of raters. The column labeled "Score" displays your performance on this competency, as measured by the Total score from all of your raters (excluding your Self responses).

Section 10: Supplemental View: Leadership Tent Model

This graph displays your Total scores for the 5 Tent Poles in relation to the Extraordinary Leader norms, which are overlaid as line graphs. The Total score is an average of the scores from all competencies included in that tent pole. See the following page for a list of the competencies included in each of the tent poles. This graph provides a quick summary of your overall areas of strength. It can be used to help identify opportunities for "balancing your tent." This is an alternate way to view the key data already presented in Section 3.

Section 12: Supplemental View: 16 Differentiating Competencies (Differences in Perception)

This section displays your Total and Self scores for all of the 16 Differentiating Competencies along with a bar graph indication of the size of the gap between the two (Total Score - Self Score). Blue-colored bars in the positive direction indicate that others (as indicated by the Total score) rated you higher than you rated yourself. Brick-colored bars in the negative direction indicate the reverse. Use this section to help identify areas where your self-perception is different from how others perceive you.
